commraderie

January - February 2011

MESSIAH COLLEGE

Editors: Derek Forney Kelsey Peachey Lauren Schick

Alumna Honored with Outstanding Master's Student Award Lauren Schick

Bethany Dennis Frampton '05 stands out as an exemplary communication alumna for her graduate work at Kent State University, Ohio. Last August, Bethany completed her master's in communication with an emphasis in interpersonal communication. She earned the Outstanding Master's Student Award by maintaining a GPA of at least 3.5 overall in good standing, and making appropriate progress towards degree completion.

By the time Bethany was awarded the Outstanding Master's Student award, she had successfully defended her thesis and was slated to graduate. Bethany's thesis, "Managing Facebook friend requests in workplace relationships: An application of communication privacy management theory" looks at the impact of social networking on interpersonal relationships in the workplace.

Bethany graduated from Messiah in 2005 as a communication/public relations major. She then worked in the field for three years before pursuing her ultimate dream—to become a professor. Kent State's focus on theory and research intrigued Bethany, and since her mother was a Kent State grad, it held a special place in her heart.

In addition to taking classes, Bethany has had the opportunity to do an assistantship, teaching three Introduction to Communication courses. The flexibility of graduate school coupled with the intensity of focused coursework created a challenging balancing act, but Bethany took it all in stride.

Currently, Bethany holds a part-time faculty position at Kent State University and works in the Communication Department at the Austen BioInnovation Institute in Akron. Congratulations, Bethany, for your outstanding accomplishment!

2011 Humanities Symposium Highlights "Friendship"

Lauren Schick

The 2011 Humanities Symposium explores the universal theme of friendship in its various applications. Highlights include presentations by dozens of humanities professors and students, as well as keynote speaker James Leach, Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Be sure to check out the many interesting lectures, especially those by Communication Department professors and students, during this week-long series.

In This Issue

- I Alumna Honored I - Humanities Symposium
- 2- Philly Campus
- 2- DJ of the Semester
- 3- Senior Spotlight
- 3- WVMM Launches Twitter
- 4- New Year's Resolution
- 4- Documentary Help Needed!
- 5- Messiah Filmmakers Society
- 5- Alumni Interview
- 7-10- Internships

Continued from Page 1

Friendship as a Catalyst for Change: The "Kupkakes for Kris" Campaign

- Wednesday, February 23rd, 4-5:30 p.m.
- Boyer 134
- Nance McCown, Lauren Schick, and Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) Messiah College Chapter

"Cautiva (Captive)": Recovering Identity through Friendship

- Thursday, February 24th, 8–9:30 p.m.
- Boyer Hall 137 (Parmer Cinema)
- Fabrizio Cilento, Robin Lauermann

Find the complete schedule at http://www. messiah.edu/schools/humanities/center/ symposium/2011HumSympBrochure.pdf/.

Philly Campus

Ashley Cole

Perhaps you've heard students describe a semester at Messiah College Philadelphia Campus (MCPC) as "life changing." I believe this is true, because students are given the flexibility to design their own experience in Philadelphia. Are you interested in courses at Temple University? Would you like to intern in the nation's sixth largest city? Are you craving intentional community and a change of scenery?

I graduated from Messiah College with a degree in communication. I spent the spring semester of my junior year studying in Philadelphia and interning with Temple University Sports Media Relations. The semester was so "life changing" that I decided to return to Philadelphia after graduation, and my story is not uncommon—almost 20% of MCPC alums now live within a 10-mile radius of the Philly Campus!

I would love to share my experience with you and explore how MCPC could be the perfect fit for you, too. Please email me (acole@messiah.edu) or stop by the EpiCenter on Wednesdays between 10:00 a.m. & 3:00 p.m.

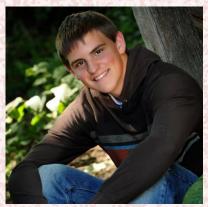

The application deadline for the fall '11 semester is February 16.

Page 2

Dan Row DJ of the Semester Kelsey Peachey

WVMM honors Dan Row, chosen from among 65 worthy DJ candidates, with the DJ of the Semester Award for the fall of 2010. An outstanding addition to the Messiah College radio station, Dan is a first-year English major from Deshler, Neb.

"The radio station helped me, as a freshman, adjust to the switch to college, especially one so far away," says Dan. "I always have some listeners back home in Nebraska listening to my show and occasionally calling in. It's a really fun and different way to stay in touch."

Listeners can connect with Dan Row's radio show, The InterRadioActive Show, through Facebook. WVMM has received multiple e-mails from Dan's listeners noting how much they enjoy his show and the radio station here at Messiah College.

For the V 90.7 Spring Semester schedule, visit WVMM's website at www.messiah.edu/wvmm.

Guess who!

Each month, we will give you a fun fact about one of your Communication Department professors. See if you can figure it out!

I once served as Master/Mistress of Ceremonies for an Amish Talent Show.

Check back next month for the answer!

Last month's mystery professor: Professor Reid Perkins-Buzo's favorite novel is The Ingenious Hidalgo Don Quixote of La Mancha!

Senior Spotlight: Neil Plumley

Kelsey Peachey

Name: Brandon Neil Plumley. Parents wanted me to be called by my middle name, Neil. So I sign my name B. Neil Plumley.

Birthday: January 24, 1989

Hometown: Wilmington, Del.

Major/Concentration: communication with a film concentration

Favorite Messiah Class: That's a good question. It's gotta be a toss-up between Problems in Philosophy with David Shenk and 16mm Filmmaking with Reid Perkins-Buzo. Those were both great classes that I learned a lot in.

Favorite Messiah Food: Uhhh, no comment. Haha. Well I have gotten quite a number of bacon cheeseburgers from the Union over the years, so I guess I'll go with that.

Plans after Graduation: My plan is to head out to Los Angeles for an internship and see what they have out there. I want to get into cinematography, so if I could work any job that would get me closer to that goal, I'd do it.

Best Messiah Memory: That's a tough one. I don't think I'll be able to pin down one specific memory. I have the time that I spent in Philadelphia which was unbelievable... I have midnight movie premieres at the movie theater... biking through the trails behind Messiah... launching water balloons at unsuspecting pedestrians... spending all night in the editing lab trying to get my projects in on time... midnight/2 a.m. runs to Wendy's/ Sheets/Walmart/Bakers. There are too many memories to pick a favorite. Through all of this, however, I had my friends with me, and I'll remember them and what they mean to me long after our antics have been forgotten.

WVMM Launches Twitter

Kelsey Peachey

If you have sat through any communication class, you've discussed the topic of social media frequently. Recently the staff at WVMM discussed ways to utilize social media to promote the radio station. After hearing public relations executive Anne Buchanan speak in last fall's Mass Media and Society class, the staff decided to start a Twitter account to increase success.

Twitter has over 95 million tweets per day (1100 tweets/ sec.)

At the beginning of J-term, WVMM joined the ranks of this growing social media tool, which boasts over 95 million tweets daily (1,100 tweets per second). Less than a month later, WVMM has 30 followers and achieved one listing and four retweets. Links between WVMM's Twitter and Facebook accounts create simultaneous status postings in each medium. "A goal of ours is to post something at least once a day," says Manager Amy Besserer, "as a way for others to see us as an active user on their feed." Over the past few years, WVMM's Facebook page has garnered "likes" from over 730 people. Apart from the station's main page, over a dozen pages and groups on Facebook represent individual DJs' radio shows.

Through social media usage, WVMM has generated listeners and support for the radio station. The official WVMM website contains links to both the Twitter and Facebook accounts. Follow WVMM on Twitter for the latest updates on the artists featured on the V 90.7, for ways to get involved, and to win prizes.

"Like" Us on Facebook

Get connected with the Communication Department online. See what's new with social media practices, student projects, internship opportunities and much more!

To Be a Better Communicator

Derek Forney

If I'm not mistaken, the general consensus on New Year's resolutions is that they make you feel good about yourself for a while, but they never really last past January. For that reason, I have stopped making them; instead I rely on goals I can work towards throughout the year. This may seem like a resolution to some, but for me it's a goal for 2011: to be a better communicator.

This past fall, I had the pleasure of taking Communication Senior Seminar with Dr. Kate Simcox. The best part of the class for me was the readings, which the class reacted to in a few paragraphs each day we met. One reading in particular grabbed my attention: Flickering Pixels (2009) by Shane Hipps. Hipps discusses how technology and the viewing medium shape the end message. More specifically to Christians, Hipps emphasizes the impact of these messages on our faith. Maybe it was because everyone likes a book they can agree with, but I really found my own thoughts verbalized in this reading. Specifically, the concept of meaningful communication resonated with me.

"We sit hypnotized by the program—the content—which has gripped our attention, unaware of the ... repatterning (of) the neural pathways in our brain...reducing our capacity for abstract thought" (Hipps, 26). How many times do we find ourselves mindlessly watching a TV show and realize we should go do something else, but then never stop watching the show? Or, how many times do we stare at Facebook and wonder, "why does all of this information seem empty and meaningless?"

With all of the communication channels surrounding us today, sleep is the only time in my life I am not being bombarded with media content. With the growth of social media and easily accessible mobile media, we are never disconnected from the world. But are we really connected? In this issue of commraderie's alumni spotlight, Brian

Page 4

Duffield mentions telling stories that present truth and value. We can't live these stories while the TV captivates our mind to mush or while we maintain superficial relationships on Facebook. It takes a live person to start (and continue) a friendship. So much of communication today is touted as the newest technology and latest trends. Somewhere, inperson has fallen by the wayside, and in little (or big) ways, we have become worse communicators.

So my goal for communicators is that I initiate meaningful communication through human interaction. One of the nicest parts of my Christmas break was talking face to face with people I haven't seen in a while. Another was not being limited by communication over the keys of my laptop. The aspect of taking time, sharing stories and discussing life in-person was invigorating compared to a 17-inch screen. My challenge to myself—and commraderie readers? At least once a month, or once a week if possible, search out one of those people on Facebook you have been meaning to talk with and have a good, old-fashioned, sit-down chat. Create meaningful communication.

Chip Miller Documentary: Help Needed!

Derek Forney

As published in the last issue of commraderie, Messiah's Department of Communication is currently working on a documentary about local Corvette enthusiast Chip Miller. This past semester, Katie Breiter, Neil Plumley, and various other students compiled interviews from his friends and family.

The project requires a few more interviews, but project leaders need more students to complete them. While the length of the documentary is still being determined, more than 15 hours of footage need to be reviewed and edited.

The project could use people with skills in using Final Cut Pro and compressing/exporting video footage. Interest in learning more about producing and directingis also welcome. For more information, please contact Dr. Arke as soon as possible.

"Because Film Changes the World"

Lauren Schick

If, like me, you find yourself transfixed watching the Golden Globes, you'll be interested to know that Messiah has a filmmakers society, just like the Hollywood Foreign Press. Okay, so not exactly like The Hollywood Foreign Press. But Messiah Filmmakers Society is pretty cool, and any student can be a part of it.

Messiah Filmmakers Society (MFS), a film student collective, seeks to foster a creative community to bring projects into production and distribution, not just watch films and discuss them. Actors, musicians, writers, and graphic designers are always helpful, but MFS welcomes anyone who is interested in learning about film and how it's made. The group meets each Wednesdays in Boyer 422, from 7-8 p.m.

Started in 2006, the society aspires to foster student collaboration from first-year students to seniors. After talking with upperclassmen, current MFS president and originating member Rebecca Rinker recognized a disconnect between film students in the past, which led to problems. Films require a lot of manpower to create—from casting to shooting to editing. MFS provides a forum for students to help each other with their films.

Katie Breiter, MFS treasurer and publicist, says, "Messiah Filmmakers Society is a great way to meet my fellow film colleagues, learn from others who have gone before me, collaborate on projects, and hone my craft. Being a production assistant for someone else's film is a great way to gain experience and learn techniques. Then when it's your turn to shoot, you hope someone else steps up to help. That's what MFS is all about."

Rebecca finds that MFS highlights different students' strengths. "I'm a producer and a makeup artist. I know very little about lighting and cinematography, and it's helpful to have film friends who excel in those areas. I also love the sense of family that forms from the Filmmakers Society meetings. That's really important to have on a set when you are working so closely together."

On a typical Wednesday night, the Filmmakers Society talks about industry current events, the topic of the week, or hears from students who studied at Messiah College Philadelphia Campus. Then they get project updates, and have some time to hang out and chat. They even ventured out to see Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows together.

If you love film production or would like to learn more about the Messiah Filmmakers Society, email Rebecca Rinker, MFS president, at rr1238@messiah.edu.

Page 5

Brian Duffield '08 recently sold his first screenplay.

To Tell a Story... and Get Paid for it! Derek Forney

2008 alumni from the Film and Digital Media concentration are making Messiah proud in Hollywood. For instance, Matt Thorton is an assistant to the directors of Cloudy with a Chance of Meatballs (2009), and the upcoming 21 Jump Street. Matt Wells is making a name for himself as one of the most creative and exciting up-and-coming directors. And Brian Duffield is garnering interest—and success—with stories based on honest experiences he has encountered.

After graduating from Messiah, Brian found an unpaid internship with a production company in Los Angeles. Nine months later, he landed a paid position as an assistant to a literary agent, a job consisting of reading scripts for hours on end. But laborious script reading, "several bosses who were competing to be antichrist," and a desire to focus on writing led Brian to try temp work. This unlikely step actually got Brian noticed, and ultimately jumpstarted his screenwriting career.

Brian uses past experiences to write his stories. Recently, he sold his first screenplay, Your Bridesmaid is a Bitch, inspired by what he calls an impressive collection of "lousy exgirlfriends." Most of his stories' muses come from whatever is stressing him out at the time he is writing, "be it girls, faith or dinosaurs."

Brian's goal and the compass by which he guides his career involves telling "personal, honest stories (or at least stories with giant monsters in them)." Influenced by former head of Messiah's Student Activities Board Jeff Rioux, Brian desires to write stories offering value and truth. And it has paid off. In just one month, Brian accomplished many career goals, including finding a manager, selling his script, and making "The Black List" (an industry poll of the best scripts of the year).

Apply Now! messiah.edu/philly Fall '11 Deadline: February 16 Questions? philly@messiah.edu

Sarah Hawkins Junior Broadcasting

Messiah College Philly Campus

Philly Phashion

Continued from Page 5

Brian hopes to continue writing scripts and thriving in the film industry. He credits a great church family and a trinity of Matthews (Wells, Thorton and Mead—all alumni), as a blessing personally and professionally.

Brian's Suggestions for Film and Digital Media Students:

- Take advantage of the classes Temple has to offer.
- Seriously consider moving to Los Angeles.
- If you aspire to be a screenwriter, tell stories you want to see, and in ways that are honest.

Internship Opportunities

Although applications for summer internships were due February 1st in the Internship Center, students obtaining internships on their own may still register for summer academic credit. The fall internship application is April 1st.

Spring and Fall Opportunity:

West Shore Evangelical Free Church

Location: Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: This project addresses basic women's issues, feminine hygiene and HIV Aids education for women in Kenya. It is a position for an enthusiastic and energetic female student who will assist with the development of a cross-cultural mission component to West Shore E-Free Church's existing Women's Ministry. Job responsibilities will include: developing an Excel database of existing contacts, designing and writing a brochure, developing a PowerPoint presentation (and DVD). This intern will be involved in a community outreach fundraiser "WISP~her Walk for Women."

Contact: Carole Davidson Jones, caroledjones@verizon. net, Home - 717.763.9865 or Cell - 717.319.2320

Summer Opportunities:

The Cleveland Foundation

Location: Cleveland, Ohio.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Work with greater Cleveland non-profit and public sector community. Interns are paid $12 per hour for full-time work and attend a weekly seminar highlighting key organizations and programs being conducted in the local non-profit and public sectors. The application form and additional information can be accessed through website: http://tinyurl.com/8b5k5f

Contact: Nelson Beckford, nbeckford@clevefdn.org 216.615.7259

Westbound Communications

Location: Orange, Calif.

Major: public relations

Description: Write press releases, blogs, articles, case studies and web content. Build media lists. Research new business proposals. Conduct community outreach. Pitch stories to media. Create website content. Participate in weekly staff meetings. Networking opportunities.

Contact: Jenny Corsey, jcorsey@westboundcommunications.com, 714.663.8188 x308

Vizion Group

Location: Berwyn, Pa.

Majors: public relations, marketing

Description: Conduct online research, write media kit pieces, transcribe audio tapes, contact media, update website for agency and non-profit clients.

Contact: Steve Griffith, sgriffith@viziongroup.net 484.362.2682

Time Warner Cable

Location: Herndon, Va.

Majors: public relations, communication studies, marketing Description: In addition to their job-specific projects, interns attend workshops and panels to learn general professional development skills such as resume writing, interviews and portfolio development, and give a final presentation at the end of the summer. There are also social and team building events built into the schedule so that the students can spend time with the other interns. 40 hours/week, paid. Contact: Melissa Paolangeli Cohen 703.480.6509

Summer and Fall Opportunities:

Whitaker Center for Science and the Arts Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies, marketing Description: Assist with media coverage and placements in publications; weekly and monthly distribution of Whitaker Center events to various media; press releases; collateral distribution and inventory; website proof reading, photo acquisition, etc. Provide advertising support and liaison with sales representatives. Support promotional initiatives through research, development and on-site supervision. Provide administrative support.

Contact: Katie Hicks, khicks@whitakercenter.org 717.724.3857

Page 7

The Religion and Society Center

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Persons who are interested in working with a non-profit and/or in an interreligious/interfaith dialogue setting. Intern responsibilities include, but are not limited to: event and program coordination/facilitation (planning, publicity, registration, staffing); website enhancement/development; database management; fundraising (grant proposal writing, working with potential donors).

Contact: Carl Choper, religionandsocietycenter@gmail. com, 717.724.0353

LeadAmerica

Location: Cleveland, Ohio

Majors: public relations, communication studies

Description: LeadAmerica is looking for mature, responsible, enthusiastic, upbeat individuals to join our exceptional staff for the 2011 conference season. Through LeadAmerica's College & Career readiness curriculum, hands-on topic specific simulations, briefings with national and world leaders, and a truly experiential collegiate learning environment, our conferences provide outstanding high school and middle school students with the experience of a lifetime! Conferences are held at leading colleges and universities including: Columbia, Georgetown, Johns Hopkins, Stanford, UCLA, UC Berkeley, etc. Don't miss this opportunity to impact the lives of our next generation of young leaders! Positions as Program Directors or Managers, Team Leaders, Operations Directors and Managers, and Office Coordinators. Apply online at www.lead-america.org/employment. Contact: staff@lead-america.org 866.394.5323x270

Best Companies Group

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies, marketing Description: Develop sales and promotional materials; database management: program registrations/participants; customer service/promotion via phone, letters, emails, mailings; review and edit web sites; participate in/assist with all steps in the surveying process; assist with sales calls; assist with financials (A/R) through invoicing and running reports.

Contact: Megan Burns, meganb@bestcompaniesgroup. com

717.909.1570

National Multiple Sclerosis Society

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Interns assist in the development and implementation of special events including the Walk MS, Bike MS, and MS Polo Match. Duties include writing press releases, developing recruitment pieces, securing sponsors, working with volunteers, developing event materials. Contact: Scott Garner, scott.garner@nmss.org 717.652.2108

WHTM-TV 27

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Major: broadcasting

Description: Assist assignment editor, reporter, and photographers; gather stories and information by phone. Assist on field reporting as needed.

Contact: Melissa Stricker, mstricker@abc27.com 717.236.1444 x289

WITF, Inc.

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Major: broadcasting

Description: Pull sound bites from programming & incorporate into "image spots"; write promotional copy; assist production engineer in recording location sound/listener ID's. Visit www.witf.org. Go to the career section and then to the internship section for brief internship descriptions. Contact: Teresa Kurtz, teresa_kurtz@witf.org 717.910.2814

First Generation Video

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: film, broadcasting

Description: Responsibilites may include website design work, video editing, production, client interaction, set-up lights, audio equipment, and duplication of finished video projects, CD production and working live events. Contact: Fran Masciantonio, fran@fgv.com

717.975.9210

County Commissioners Association of PA Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies, business Description: Projects include publication and website design work for IT dept; design/edit sample employee orientation manual; work on CCAP publications; insurance programs procedural manual; inventory data conversion; vehicle risk management group; prison risk management guide.

Contact: John Sallade, jsallade@pacounties.org 717.232.7554

The Triscari Group

Location: Harrisburg, Pa. Major: film

Description: Produce award-winning programs from scripts and storyboards. Do on-location and in-studio shoots. Create state-of-the-art 2D and 3D animation. Design cutting-edge interactive media that serve as valuable marketing, sales and recruitment tools. Website content development, design, hosting, multimedia and programming for the worldwide web. Develop, design, and produce traditional print pieces as collateral material either to accompany other media or as stand-alones. Contact: Sebastian Triscari, info@triscari.com

717.975.3348

Church World Service

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Exploring and implementing new public relations methods; researching various country situations to assist in preparing asylum cases; translating for the refugees (languages include Spanish, French, Russian, Arabic, and Turkish); updating our website; creating a DVD about refugee resettlement with CWS to be used for church sponsorship; writing articles about refugees for the local newspapers; interviewing refugees; transporting refugees to various appointments; introducing the refugees to the community (showing them how to use the library, post office, food stamps, etc.).

Contact: Rev. Patrick Walker, pwalker@churchworldservice.org

Keystone Human Services

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: film, broadcasting

Description: Help with press releases, marketing, events like ChocolateFest, database work, mailings, possibly help with grant writing.

Contact:Wendy Deibert, wdeibert@keystonehumanservices.org

717.541.8322

CURE International

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Interns would work alongside of the director of the "Connections of Life" program assisting him in communication, program promotion and implementation. Since this program is a new facet of CURE, the intern will have the opportunity to utilize his/her creative skills as the program develops.

Contact: Heather Hunter, hhunter@cureinternational.org 717.730.6706

Capital Blue Cross

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Major: public relations, communication studies Description: Maintain websites; write articles for internal and external newsletters; proofread written material, draft news releases, assist with promotion, create flyers using desk-top publishing; provide clerical and research support as necessary.

Contact: Connie Suraci, connie.suraci@capbluecross.com 717.541.6014

Sacunas, Inc.

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, marketing

Description: Augment marketing and PR efforts; assist with news release and media advisory distribution, and maintain news release binders; assist with videotaping; account support— provide online research, editing, and proofreading support; help with materials development; assist with phone calls, faxes, e-mails, and mailings; coordinate with outside suppliers, and shop for client-specific supplies; develop detailed editorial content for quarterly newsletter; draft all copy and design layout; maintain notes on all projects and keep track of status of projects.

Contact: Dee Barth, dbarth@sacunas.net, Internship@ sacunas.net

717.652.0100 x16

International House

Location: Harrisburg, Pa.

Majors: public relations, communication studies Description: Interact with residents from all over the world; experience living on your own; foster friendships with international interns.

Contact: Virginia Burd, virginiaburd@harristown.net 717.724.2846

Christian Life Assembly

Location: Camp Hill, Pa. Major: film

Description: Assist the Media Department at a large local church with duties including video recording, video editing, audio editing, graphic design, lighting and web.

Contact: Richard Foster, RFoster@christian-life.com 717.727.6560

commraderie

Institute on Political Journalism

Location: Georgetown University, Washington D.C. Majors: broadcasting, journalism, public relations Description: Sponsored by The Fund for American Studies and held at Georgetown University, the Institute combines substantive internships, courses for academic credit, career development activities, site briefings and lectures led by working journalists and communication professionals. This fast-paced, eight-week residential program provides students from around the world with opportunities to gain the edge in today's competitive job market and graduate school admissions, and experience the excitement of Washington first-hand. There are competitive placements with top PR and communications firms as well as news and media organizations. Programs run between June 5-July 30. Priority deadline: February 3, Final deadline: March 3, 2011. For more information, visit www.DCinternships.org/IPJ, or contact Joe Starrs, IPJ Program Director, at admissions@ tfas.org or 1-800-741-6964.

Job Opening

WGAL

Location: Lancaster, Pa. Majors: film, broadcasting

Job Title: FT Camera Operator/Director

Description: This is an entry level directing position involving both camera/studio work and the directing of live newscasts. While previous experience is not absolutely required, college level courses in television production, familiarity with switchers, character generators and digital effect units would be a real plus. We will train the right applicant for this position. Presently, the camera operating duties are on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The directing duties are on Saturday and Sunday mornings. The position requires that the applicant be fully mobile and able to lift no more than 50 pounds. The ability to work well as a team player is of the highest importance and reliable work attendance is a must. There is an attractive benefit package.

Contact: Interested applicants should send a resume to Bob Good, WGAL-TV, PO Box 7127, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Congrats PR Campaign Team!

Congratulations on a job well done by the Messiah College Public Relations Campaign Team led by Dr. Nance McCown. The group recently completed its TenTogether campaign work for Forgotten Voices International. Team members are shown here with Forgotten Voices International president Ryan Keith. To see the group's presentation to Forgotten Voices, visit http://daforney.blip.tv/. For more information about Forgotten Voices, visit http://forgottenvoices.org!

Look out for next month's stories!

There is so much we didn't have room for this month that we had to push it to the next issue of commraderie. Here's a taste of upcoming stories:

- Senior Film Projects
- Communication Faculty Projects
- Senior Spotlight- Broadcasting
- Why Network?

