

SHAASHAWN S. DIAL

Shaashawn "The Voyce" Dial is an award winning radio broadcaster, seasoned public relations professional, passionate poet (cultural arts programmer), engaging workshop facilitator / public speaker, edutaining mistress of ceremonies and commitment ceremony/wedding coordinator. Shaashawn is the Co-Founder & Editor-In-Chief of Studs Magazine and currently serves as a College Advisor & First Year Experience Coordinator at Central Penn College (www.CentralPenn.edu).

Shaashawn released her first spoken word CD titled VOYCEMAIL January 30, 2010 (www.Shaashawn.com). Her formal education includes a B.A. in Philosophy, Law, and Rhetoric from Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri and a Masters in Public Administration from Shippensburg University in Shippensburg, PA.

Shaashawn's greatest passion is creating outlets for all persons to discover their voice. To Shaashawn, "voice" is the tool for which people take holistic ownership of their mental, physical, spiritual, and economic health. Shaashawn strives to exercise her own voice to inspire those who have lost their voice to re-discover it; and to aid those who do not think they have a voice – to find it.