Advertising Resources

Discipline-based Organizations
Many disciplines have professional organizations associated with them. Some have subcommittees or associated groups for women and/or persons from underrepresented groups. In addition, most have both national and regional meetings, newsletters, e-mail lists and Web sites. These organizational resources can serve key roles in recruiting efforts. Poll others in your area to determine which organizations are relevant to your search. Distribute job announcements to regional contacts or Committee Chairs. Follow-up with sourcing phone calls to discuss the department’s needs and how best to identify promising individuals in the field. Examples of discipline-based organizations include:

This list of underrepresented institutions was compiled based on the definition of “underrepresented institution” in the Higher Education Act (HEA) and on Fall 2005 enrollment data from the Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS) collected by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES). NCES has determined that each of the colleges and universities on this list reported an enrollment of a single underrepresented group, or combination of those underrepresented groups, that exceeded 50 percent of its total enrollment. For the purposes of this list, “underrepresented” is defined as American Indian, Alaska Native, Black (not of Hispanic origin) and Hispanic.
